A FUNNY SKETCH.

When they reached the depot Mr. Man and his wife gazed with unspeakable disappointment at the receding train, which was just pulling away from the bridge switch at the rate of a thousand miles a minute. Their first impulse was to run after it, but as the train was out of sight and whistling for Sagetown, before they could act upon the impulse, they remained in the carriage, and disconsolately turned the horses' heads homeward.

"It all comes of having to wait for a woman to get ready," Mr. Man broke in with, grimly.

"I was ready before you were," replied his wife.

"Great heavens!" cried Mr. Man, in irrepressible impatience, jerking the horses' jaws out of place "just listen to that! And I sat out in the buggy ten minutes, yelling at you to come along until the whole neighborhood heard me!"

"Yes," acquiesced Mrs. Man with the provoking placidity which no one can assume but a woman, "and every time I started down stairs you sent me back for something you had forgotten."

Mr. Man groaned.

"This is too much to bear," he said, "when everybody knows that if I was going to Europe I would just rush into the house, put on a clean shirt, grab up my grip sack, and fly; while you would want at least six months, preliminary preparation, and then dawdle around the whole day before starting, until every train had left town."

Well, the upshot of the matter was that the Mans put off their visit to Aurora until next week, and it was agreed that each one should get him or herself ready, and go down to the train and go, and the one who failed to get ready should be left.

The day of the match came around in due time. The train was to go at 10:30, and Mr. Man, after attending to his business, went home at 9:42.

"Now, then," he shouted, "only three quarters of an hour till train time. Fly around, a fair field and no favors, you know."

And away they flew, Mr. Man bulged into this room, and rushed through that one, and dived into one closet after another with inconceivable rapidity, chuckling all the time to think how cheap Mrs. Man would feel when he started off alone. He stopped on his way up stairs to pull off his heavy boots to save time. For the same reason he pulled off his coat as he ran through the dining-room, and hung it on the corner of the silver closet. Then he jerked off his vest, as he rushed through the hall, and tossed it on a hook in the hat rack, and by the time he reached his own room, he was ready to plunge into his clean clothes. He pulled out a bureau drawer, and began to paw at things like a Scotch terrier after a rat.

"Eleanor!" he shrieked, "where are my shirts?"

"In your drawer," calmly replied Mrs. Man, who was standing placidly before a glass, calmly and deliberately coaxing a refractory crimp into place.

"Well, by thunder, they ain't," shouted Mr. Man, a little annoyed. "I've emptied everything out of the drawer, and there isn't a thing in it that I ever saw before."

Mrs. Man stepped back a few paces, held her head to one side, and after satisfying herself that the crimp would do, and would stay where she put it, replied:

"These things scattered around the floor are all mine. Probably you haven't been looking in your own drawer."

"I don't see," testily observed Mr. Man, "why you couldn't have put my things out for me when you hadn't anything else to do all morning."

"Because," said Mrs. Man, setting herself to an additional article of raiment with awful deliberation, "nobody put mine out for me. A fair field and no favors, my dear."

Mr. Man plunged into his shirt like a bull at a red flag.

"Foul!" he shouted in malicious triumph. "No button on the neck!"

"Because," said Mrs. Man, sweetly, after a deliberate stare at the fidgeting, impatient man, during which she buttoned her dress, and put eleven pins where they would do the most good, "because you have got the shirt on wrong side out."

When Mr. Man slid out of that shirt he began to sweat. He dropped the shirt three times before he got it on, and while it was over his head he heard the clock strike ten. When his head came through he saw Mrs. Man coaxing the ends and bows of her necktie.

"Where's my shirt studs?" he cried.

Mrs. Man went into another room, and presently returned with her gloves and hat, and saw Mr. Man emptying all the boxes he could find in and about the bureau. Then she said:

"In the shirt you took off."

Mrs. Man put on her gloves, while Mr. Man hunted up and down the room for his cuff buttons.

"Eleanor," he snarled at last, "I believe you know where those buttons are."

"I haven't seen them," said the lady, setting her hat; "didn't you lay them down on the window-sill in the sitting room last night?"

Mr. Man remembered and he went down stairs on a run. He stepped on one of his boots and was immediately landed in the hall at the bottom of the stairs with neatness and dispatch, attended in transmission with more bumps than he could count with a Webb's adder, and landed with a bang like the Hell Gate explosion.

"Are you ready, Algernon?" asked the wife of his family, sweetly leaning over the banisters.

The unhappy man groaned.

"Can't you throw me down the other boot?"

Mrs. Man pityingly kicked it down to him.

"My valise?" he inquired, as he tugged away at the boot.

"Is in your dressing-room," she answered.

"Packed?"

"I do not know—unless you packed it yourself—probably not?" she replied, with her hand on the door knob; "I had hardly time to pack my own."

She was passing out the gate when the door opened, and he shouted:

"Where in the name of goodness did you put my vest?" It has all my money in it!"

"You threw it on the hat-rack," she called back. "Good-bye, dear."

"Eleanor! Eleanor! Eleanor Man! Did you carry off my coat?"

She paused and turned, after signaling the street car to stop, and cried:

"You hung it in the silver closet."

And the street car engulfed her graceful figure and she was seen no more. But the neighbors say that they heard Mr. Man charging up and down the house rushing out at the front door every now and then, and shrieking up the deserted streets after the unconscious Mrs. Man to know where his hat was, and the valise key, and if he had any clean socks and undershirts, and that there wasn't a linen collar in the house. And when he went away at last he left the kitchen door, side door, front door, all the down stairs windows and the front gate open. And the loungers around the depot that day were somewhat amused, just as the train was pulling out of sight down in the yards, to see a flushed, perspiring man, with his hat on sideways, his vest buttoned two buttons too high, his cuffs unbuttoned, his necktie flying, and his grip sack flapping open and shut like a demented shutter on a March night, and a door key in his hand, dash wildly across the platform and halt in the middle of the track, glaring in dazed, impatient, wrathful mortification at the departing train, and shaking his trembling fist at a pretty woman, who was throwing kisses at him from the rear platform of the last car.

A LADY who has lived in Washington twenty years says she has never before known her sex to take so much interest in the choice of a Speaker as in that just terminated: Not one of those who have been so interested have had any personal ends to be gained by the election of either candidate, beyond friendship for one or the other of them and their wives. The wives of the candidates have modestly kept in the background.

The work in the bed of Limestone creek, in progress for a week past, was well done, and is very creditable to the ingenuity and mechanical skill of Mr. Shaeffer, the superintendent of the water works.

The Vanceburg Courier mentions as being still in existence a side of bacon that was sold to a citizen in 1865. The Courier adds that although yellow with age its strength has not been impaired in the least.

The case of the Commonwealth against Jacob Lang, of Lewis county, has been affirmed by the Superior Court. It will be remembered that Lang was fined $60 for selling spirituous liquors disguised as cinnamon drops.

PERSONS who deposit ashes in barrels or other wooden receptacles should be careful to see that there are no live coals with it. A fire that might have been a serious one, originated from that source last night, at one of the residences on Third street.

"HOG-BITE TOBACCO" is a kind of chewing gum lately introduced in this city by Messrs. Richardson & Russell. The name was given to it by the manufacturers at Cincinnati, who had read in the DAILY BULLETIN how people were bitten by hogs in Maysville. They recommend it as an excellent antidote for the bite of our city squealers. Messrs. Richardson & Russell have received a letter from the manufacturers of this article informing them of the facts given above.

A SALOON-KEEPER at Miamisburg, Ohio, has issued a business card on the back of which is the following:

"To all whom it may concern: Know ye that, by the payment of $25, I am permitted to retail intoxicating liquors at my saloon in this city. To the wife who has a drunkard for a husband, or a friend who is unfortunately despatched, I say emphatically, give me notice in person of such case, or cases, in which you are interested, and all such shall be excluded from my place. Let mothers, fathers, sisters and brothers, do likewise, and their requests will be kindly regarded. I pay a heavy tax for the privilege of selling liquors, and I want it distinctly understood that I have no desire to sell to drunkards, minors, or to the poor or destitute. I much prefer that they save their money and put it where it will do the most good to their families. These are sentiments of honor, and men of money who can afford it, and it is with those that I desire to trade."

Was This Man Devoured by a Hog?

Cincinnati Post.

Tude Bowman, clerk for R. N. Ramsey, Manchester, Ohio, left there last Tuesday for Maysville, Ky. Not heard from since. His friends are anxious to know where he is. Maysville is a dangerous place, where hogs run wild in the streets.

Many of the restaurants of Paris are simply robbing dens through politeness and false pretenses. A correspondent describes the programme at one of an honest class: "It is the establissement de bouillon. The founder was a butcher named Duval, and now Paris is full of them. The exterior is all painted chocolate color, with gold. When you enter you are handed a menu, which is stamped with a number, and the prices of everything are opposite the name of the dish—very rare in Paris. A charity girl, dressed in cap and apron, takes your order and serves you very neatly. The portions are only large enough for one person, and the prices remarkably cheap. They charge five centimes (a cent) for your napkin, and a small amount—two or three cents—for service. When you have finished, the waitress takes your menu card, and makes addition on it. You take this card to the cashier. She receipt it, and stamps it again, and, on leaving the restaurant, you hand it to the girl sitting at the door, who gave it to you first. It is remarkable what a cheap meal you can make at one of these establishments, and the excellence of the food."

Purge out the lurking distemper that undermines health, and the constitutional vigor will return. Those who suffer from an enfeebled and disordered state of the system, should take Ayer's Sarsaparilla to cleanse the blood and restore vitality.

Knights of Pythias, Attention.

A full meeting is expected at the Castle Hall on Friday night next, at seven o'clock. A lecture will be delivered by Sir Knight A. A. Wadsworth. Brother Knights of Aberdeen, will be present. The public, ladies and gentlemen, are cordially invited. There will be good singing. J. K. LLOYD, K. of R. & S.

Nothing Like It.

No medicine has ever been known so effectual in the cure of all those diseases arising from an impure condition of the blood as Scovill's Sarsaparilla, or blood and liver syrup, for the cure of scrofula, white swellings, rheumatism, pimples, blotches, eruptions, venereal sores and diseases, consumption, gout, boils, cancers, and all kindred diseases. No better means of securing a beautiful complexion can be obtained than by using Scovill's Blood and Liver Syrup, which cleanses the blood and gives beauty to the skin.
